 First edition of this version and the first publication of Plato in any language. This appears to be a copy of the earliest issue before the leaves of errata were printed, and also before the impression of the preliminary matter. The latter is written on seven leaves at the end in an almost contemporary hand. The matter is arranged in this copy differently from that described in Hain.

 First edition with maps, forming also the first printed atlas. The letterings of the names on the maps are punched not engraved. The engraving of these maps was commenced by Conrad Sweynheym, when he retired from his association with Pannartz. The Epistle dedicatory on the first leaf tells us that he was employed upon them for three years, after which he died; and, that his work should not perish with him, it was taken up by Buckinck, who, by the way, assumes all the credit in the colophon. It is commonly said that the Euclid of 1482 is the first book with mathematical figures, but we find here on leaves 9 and 10 woodcuts to illustrate the projection of the sphere used for the maps. It is the second book printed with copperplate engravings, the first being the Monte Sancto di Dio of Bettini, in 1477. It is, moreover, the only book known to have been printed by Arnold Buckinck. The type is quite distinct from that used by Sweynheym and Pannartz.

 The above is three years later than the Roman edition with Ruysch's map, which contained the first published delineation of America. The map of the world, which comes last in the volume described above, represents the New World in an extremely curious way. Brazil, a large tract, is called Terra Sanctae Crucis, the Orinoco and Amazon are both laid down with approximate truth, and the upper outline of the continent bears the words "Canibaluz romon". This is the first appearance of North America in any printed map, and also the first graphic record of the discoveries (in 1500) of Corte Real. It is also remarkable for the manner in which the names are printed on the maps—this having been done by types after the woodcuts had been worked off. This is the first instance in which such a method of operation was ever adopted.

 "The parent edition of a new series of Ptolemies. Sebastian Münster, the famous cosmographer, edited it (first in 1540, of which the above is a re-issue with a new date) re-designing the maps, according to the lights of fresh discovery, and thenceforward each new edition has followed or improved upon his work." The borders surrounding the descriptions of the maps are said to be after designs of Holbein.
